

RAND's Economics, Sociology, and Statistics Department seeks applied microeconomists across all experience levels. RAND economists develop policy-relevant research agendas within or across research areas such as education, labor, defense, and health. RAND economists have the option to teach policy PhD students at Pardee RAND Graduate School. More information about economics at RAND: <http://www.rand.org/economics/>.

Applicants should have a PhD by September 2023, demonstrated research skills, a strong interest in policy-relevant empirical analysis, and excellent written and oral communication skills. RAND offers a flexible working environment, with offices in: Santa Monica, CA; Arlington, VA; Pittsburgh, PA; Boston, MA.

Applicants should submit a cover letter, curriculum vitae, research paper, and three letters of recommendation through EconJobMarket (only) (<https://econjobmarket.org/positions/8745>). Direct questions to econrecruit@rand.org

Applications received by 4pm PT/ 7pm ET on November 15, 2022 will be considered for virtual interviews starting around January 4, 2023 (not overlapping the 2023 ASSA/AEA meetings).

RAND is an Equal Opportunity Employer: race/color/religion/sexual orientation/gender identity/disability/veteran. Diversity is essential to RAND's mission of improving policy and decisionmaking through research. Employee Resource Groups: Black Employees Leading in Inclusion, Equity, Vision, and Education; Disability Empowerment and Visibility Organization; Enrichment for Asian American and Pacific Islander Culture and Heritage; Latinx y Más; LGBTQ+.