

The Trinity University Department of Economics invites applications for a tenure-track position at the assistant professor level beginning Fall 2020. Applicants from all fields are welcome to apply but some preference will be given to those with a field in international economics.

Outstanding teaching ability and enthusiasm for teaching in a liberal arts environment are essential, as is strong scholarly potential. Successful applicants will demonstrate a commitment to Trinity's general education curriculum (including the First-Year Experience) and various interdisciplinary or international initiatives. Some teaching experience is desirable.

This position carries a 3-3 teaching load with a full-salary one-semester research leave at the end of the third year, and start-up and travel funds. Our department faculty have active research agendas with generous sabbatical leaves for tenured faculty. Generally, economics faculty members have one or two preparations per semester. Tenure-track faculty are eligible for travel support and reimbursement of relocation costs within the University's policies. All full-time appointments offer competitive salaries and include full benefits.

All requirements for the Ph.D. must be completed by August 2020.

Trinity University is a highly selective, primarily undergraduate institution. Its attractive campus overlooks downtown San Antonio, a culturally diverse city of two million people. For more information about the Department and University see <https://new.trinity.edu/academics/departments/economics>.

Trinity University is an equal opportunity employer. Women and minorities are encouraged to apply.

Education Requirements:

Ph.D. in Economics by August of 2020.

Application Deadline:

For full consideration, applications and related materials must be received by November 15, 2019. We will conduct interviews by prior appointment at the AEA meetings.

How to apply:

Applications should include a cover letter, vitae, evidence of teaching effectiveness and three letters of reference. All of these materials should be submitted online at the JOE (https://www.aeaweb.org/joe/listing.php?JOE_ID=2019-02_111462936).